

Group Values

Anything written here can be changed as we are led to change it.

This is a place where we all minister. The ways each of us ministers differ, and we believe that's exactly how God planned it.

We enjoy the following components of our times together:

1. Our meal time, during which we catch up with one another, tell what God has done, and request prayer for needs.
2. Our worship time. We start with a song or two, then everybody gets a chance to pray or start a song. If a musician is present, we can first see if they can accompany any song suggested. We feel free to start songs to be sung either with or for the others.
3. Our learning time. We can all offer insight into God's Word from our gifts or experiences, usually about a pre-selected topic or passage.

We don't always do all these things, and sometimes we do something else completely, recognizing that, since we minister to one other, we address in Christ whatever needs become apparent.

We feel free to get together with others in the group outside of regular meetings.

We consider any suggestion for how we may work together as a group on a special project for the sake of God's kingdom.

We welcome others to enjoy God with us, wherever they are from.

We value each other's companionship, but don't know how long we'll all be together (unless we happen to be in heaven as we are reading this document).

Every now and then we take time to discuss how to improve our group life, make plans, and modify these values as we feel led to.

We pray that we remain loving and united in Christ and God's Spirit.
